Meeting at School-House Monday Night
Discusses Bad State of Affairs—An Appeal
For Better Things in Future.

When it was announced in The Jeffersonian last week that Mrs. Rosa A. Stonestreet, Superintendent of County Schools, desired all interested in the Jeffersonian public school to meet her at the school-house Monday night and discuss plans for the coming year, it was hoped and expected that a large crowd would be on hand. But our people showed the same lack of interest that they have shown in school work in the past and about a dozen patrons were present. Mrs. Stonestreet presided and addressed the audience. She brought out some deplorable facts concerning the condition of the school, and said that the patrons of Jeffersonian school have shown the greatest lack of interest of any school in Jefferson county, and that it was a complete failure last year. Another thing which should make Jeffersonian fathers and mothers awake from their slumbers and take action in this the most vital and important question in bringing up children, is the fact that our school here has never had one single child to finish the common school course. These are facts that we regret to have to let the world know, but it is time something was being done. Jeffersonian, located as it is close to the metropolis of the South and her people coming in contact with the most cultured and best educated people of the country, and in the richest and best country in the state, should be ashamed of the lack of interest heretofore shown in the education of the coming generations, and see to it that we have the best and not the worst school in the county. We ought to have it. We can have it. But the patrons will have to do better than they did last year, night, which work they will take up at once. We understand a petition had been gotten up to have Messrs. Arthur Wheeler and Fritz Baumgartner appointed trustees to fill the two vacancies, but as a trustee will have to be elected the first Saturday in August, it was thought best not to take any action.

There were two applications made for the positions of principal and assistant teacher, where Mrs. Miller, of Lawrenceburg, and Miss Louise Owens, of Jeffersonian, and Mrs. Stonestreet said she desired to have the patrons of the school consider the matter before making a selection of teachers and took no action in the matter.

Dr. S. D. Wetherby, of Middletown, was present and delivered an eloquent address on education and the needs of new laws on the subject. He spoke of the bad features of the County School District Law which passed both branches of the last General Assembly and which went into effect the 15th of July. Under its provisions a school board is to be elected by the white patrons and teachers to teach white children, and Dr. Wetherby said the law would, no doubt, be repealed at the next meeting of the Legislature.

This law provides for an election of a school board on the first Monday in August in the first year of the year of the sub-district from the hours of one until five in the afternoon. "Any person shall be eligible to this office who is over twenty-one years of age and who has been a resident of the sub-district for which he is elected for sixty days before the election, and who is able to read and write." It is shown by a certificate of five reputable citizens of the sub-district, and all eligible persons over 21 years of age, who shall have resided in the school sub-division for 60 days next before an election shall have the right to vote at such election.

It follows every good citizen in Jefferson county to see to it that a man of the highest type of integrity and intelligence is elected to this office. Our schools rank next along with our churches and should have leaders fitted and well qualified for the places assigned to them.

OFFICER

And Prisoner Wounded In Duel Near Orell Thursday Night.

Bloodhounds Track Negro To Thicket, But He Refuses To Surrender And Opens Fire.

County Patrolman Steve Lewis and John Teel, a negro who is alleged to have broken into the general store of Henry Rainden, at Orell, twelve miles from Louisville on the Eighteenth street road, were each shot in the leg last Friday morning in a fight between a posse following bloodhounds and the negro.

The duel between the negro and the posse occurred when the officer de-handled the negro to surrender after the bloodhounds had tracked him to a thicket near a creek. Instead of holding up his hands as the officer demanded, the negro opened fire from a thirty-eight-caliber revolver, one of the bullets striking Patrolman Lewis in the right thigh.

The wounded officer and the posse of citizens returned to the scene. The negro fled and for a time escaped, but the posse of the posse caring for the wounded officer. Others pushed on to the scene. The posse of the posse caring for the wounded officer. Others pushed on to the scene. The posse of the posse caring for the wounded officer. Others pushed on to the scene.

The store of Mr. Rainden was broken into, entrance being gained in the building by forcing the lock on the front door. James Jeffries, a farmer living nearby, discovered the robbery when he found the door of the store open when he went to a nearby well at 4:30 o'clock Friday morning. He notified the proprietor, who immediately took steps to capture the thieves.

County Patrolman Frank Thomas and Steve Lewis, who reside in that locality, were notified and hastened to the scene. Messengers were sent to Mr. Holly, on the Third-street road, after the bloodhounds of James Angus, a stockkeeper at that place. Mr. Angus sent his clerk, Ed Horbach and Golden Raiser, a neighbor, to Orell with the hounds.

A posse of ten had been organized and started out as soon as the hounds arrived. The dogs took up the trail at once. They had gone but a short distance when they located the negro in the bushes.

An examination of Mr. Rainden's store revealed that jewelry valued at $100 and a lot of pencils were stolen. The posse of the posse caring for the wounded officer. Others pushed on to the scene. The posse of the posse caring for the wounded officer. Others pushed on to the scene.

THE FOURTH

Celebrated By The Fowler Family With a Reunion.

One Hundred and Fifty Chickens Stolen From A. B. C. An Interesting Letter From St. Matthews.

St. Matthews, July 6.—The glorious Fourth of July was celebrated at the K. M. L. School by the Fowler family reunion, numbering fifty brothers, sisters and cousins, from Pittsburg, Florida, and Shelby county, Kentucky, even the family servants, who were slaves in ante-bellum days, came to rejoice and arrange the viand prepared for the dear ones. Reminiscences and music belied that the time of separation had come, when one must return to their own home, happier indeed for this union of hearts and hands and hoping there will be many more such meetings.

Our vicinity has been invaded again by thieves. The time their target was for good country hams and chickens. It's folly for one to save chickens for "Independence Day," then to have a "spread." Robbers' minds run in the same channel. So they needed to spread several forlorn little chicks, too small for our use. How it did not accomplish a mystery. When I catch one, night or day, it squalls until the neighbors are alarmed; yet this 150 were taken without a cry being heard. So the glorious Fourth found A. B. C. mourning. We can battle the rogues by wearing our jewelry at all times, but must we take our chickens and bacon with us? Well, the problem is solved for this year—one left.

Well, I fear you will think the R. F.'s are not very patriotic, because there was no public demonstration, unless you would accept the sending up of two balloons, firing pistols, and much hurrahing of the small boy at such. Their elders contented themselves with a relaxation from labor, gathering together of families and neighbors to compare accounts, commenting upon the weather, the probable President, and several heated political discussions. Surely no candidate for office could fight with words, harder and more telling battles, for themselves, than these staid farmers do for them by every available opportunity. One would think they were to be personally benefited, or that it would effect their souls' salvation to see the vim with which they take hold of these questions. A. B. C.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Attempted By Three Negroes Alleged To Have Held Up Dr. L. A. Blankenship.

While returning from a professional call on the county at 11:30 o'clock last Friday night, Dr. L. A. Blankenship, of this place, was met on the Seatonsville road about a mile from town by three negro highwaymen, who stopped his horse, but instead of allowing them to rob him he whipped up his horse, running over and striking the other three as he passed.

As soon as he arrived he reported the case to County Patrolman Frank Thomas, who at that time was on duty at the Highland sub-station. Patrolmen Lammers and Badger started out after the robbery's late hour, who at that time was on duty at the Highland sub-station. Patrolmen Lammers and Badger started out after the robbery's late hour, who at that time was on duty at the Highland sub-station.

Upon further investigation Saturday morning it developed that the three negroes stopped at a livery stable at this place shortly after Dr. Blankenship reported the hold-up, and were given their names as George Taylor, Lew Green and William Miller, who at that time they had been party to the attempted hold-up. The trial of the three negroes was held at the O'Connell court yesterday, and the case will await the action of the grand jury.

THURSDAY, July 9, 1908.

Old Jefferson, the town that has been sleeping for one hundred and fifty years, is on a boom. Numbers of improvements are taking place daily. New concrete pavements on all the principal streets, new residences going up, and the handsomest business houses outside the city of Louisville—J. C. Bruce's three-story structure on east side of public square is now ready to be occupied. What does all this mean? Does it mean that this old town which has been dead so long and which still has many of those old times who do not believe in progress, will come to the front and be a hustling business town in a few months or years? Those are the indications now. All we need is a few hustling business men who are not afraid to invest and spend their money for the upbuilding and advancement of our town. We have several business men here now, who, if they were so determined and were not afraid to advertise the town, could in one year's time, or less, increase the population of Jefferson to 1,000 or 1,500 inhabitants. We may have to extend the town limits to do it—but steps to that effect are already being taken. The Jeffersonian is ready to give its aid to any good movement which may be suggested by our progressive citizens along this line. Our few progressive citizens, however, can not do this alone. We haven't enough of them. Every body will have to get together and work shoulder to shoulder. Many of our friends have looked at us in astonishment when we have told them that some of our merchants have not only not advertised in The Jeffersonian, but have not even subscribed for it. (No; we will not mention names here.) Do you think we can make this town what it should be if the merchants do not patronize the only medium we have for advertising and exploiting it? It takes money to run a newspaper, type-setters demand their salaries every Saturday; the trust paper companies demand their money, and a hundred obligations too numerous to mention here have to be met. It's a big amount on the part of the paper, but a small amount on the part of our citizens. If Jeffersonians want to keep going this boom which is now starting, she must get all forces to work. One or two men can not do it. And we will have to keep good citizens here. During the past few months several good men with their families have been permitted to leave us on account of not being able to secure building lots at reasonable prices; among them are Messrs. J. G. Davis, who went to Lyndon; Dr. E. R. Palmer, who moved over about Prospect; J. B. Woodson, who recently bought property and moved to St. Matthews and many others. Then there is Mr. E. R. Sprowl, man who alone has done more for Jefferson town than any other man, who is now contemplating leaving us and going where there is more business, push and enterprise. It is up to us to keep such men as these here and to give some inducement to others to come here. There are people every day inquiring for country building lots or country residences, and when they come to Jefferson town they find the prices sky high and few advantages over other places with many inducements. Our property holders should make reasonable prices if they want to sell, and our business men should boom the town if they want to make money, and in a few months this old town will be marching along in the front ranks of progress and prosperity.

The National Democratic Convention is now in session at Denver. It is expected that W. J. Bryan will be nominated for President today. Ollie James, of Kentucky, is spoken of for Vice-President.

Don't fail to read the letter from Col. E. Polk Johnson, entitled "My Old Kentucky Home" in this issue. Every line is full of the love that this great and good man has for his home state and home people and should be read by all Kentuckians everywhere.

"Mr. Editor, why is it O. G. Whizz does not write any more letters? Ohgwehwhiz! we can't tell you. Ask us something else."

COMMENTS

Of Prominent Men Upon the Directoire Govn.

By Miles Sydney Miller.

Col. Billy Buchanan is a very suggestive of high license to me.

Gotlieb Layer—Dot is a butchery—dot leg of mutton sleeves and dot leg vent cut on both sides, hein!

Ex-Mayor Bingham—I advocate Sunday closing always, and since seeing this door attachment I am for weekly closing as well.

Col. Columbus Simons—I would cash a woman's warrant for a gown like that. I would be certain to be held up.

Col. Billy Semolina—On Fourth street did you say? I wonder if I can catch the last car in?

Gov. Augustus Willson—A woman could only wear that gown when she had the dark to back her, and Bury figure.

Poet Madison J. Cawlin—it is worse than a poetical license at two dollars per. I notice also there seems very little room at the top.

Col. Tom Gilmore—Let me explain that, our model license does not include such cracks, and if women will wear gowns with slits in them they should include some breeches of propriety.

Col. Pat Walsh—I am sending out business cards to the ladies—and expect a boom in trousers this winter.

Dr. W. H. Wathen—My women patients are demanding stout quantities of nerve tonic that I fear they are preparing for a Directoire gown campaign.

Dr. Hunt Stucky—Pardon me, but I am too busy to talk—a number of my best known men patients are suffering from shock and heart failure.

Col. John Whalen—What right has the variety star to wear the belt? If this Directoire gown becomes the fashion the stage will get a body blow and hein! dot belt too.

Col. Lawrence Waters—What do I think of the Directoire gown? Well, it strikes me as a most decided improvement on the fig leaf.

Col. Daniel O'Sullivan—Charming—ever since the days of Adam and the rib the ladies are entitled to a side issue.

Col. Will Hogan—The universal adoption of this gown will oblige our ladies to wear the order of the garter.

Col. James M. Camp—it makes the dairy a mere milk and water affair beside it.

Col. Louis Seelbach—The County Fair should secure it for an exhibition of blooded calves.

Col. Ed Elliott—it reminds me of the circus on account of the side show, don't you know?

Col. Mike Muldoon—There's something monumental about it.

Walter Glover—the slit on the side shows the high water mark of fashion.

Col. Bennett Young—I like it from the ground up. It's beautifully suggestive of the prodigality of the fattest calf.

"MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME."

BY COL. E. POLK JOHNSON.

Written for The Jeffersonian.

To know and feel the real beauty and meaning of the American flag one must see it waving under a foreign sky. There it means home and duty; it means protection for the American citizen and stirs every true American heart to a deeper love for the great country which it represents. Americans meeting under its folds in a foreign land are drawn closer to each other; a deeper sense of comradeship exists among them than would be found in the same circle upon our home shores. As it is with our country's flag, so also is it with our home songs. They stir the blood and quicken the heart beats as no other songs can when heard far from the homes where first listened to them.

There were gathered once in a small dining room in the Hotel Cecil, London, a party of Americans each of whom in one way or another represented the United States Government in London or at other points in England. One of the parties who had been Consul at Liverpool was coming home and was not to return to England. Who were not so fortunate and were to remain abroad for an indefinite period, had assembled at a farewell dinner in honor of our departing friend. We had sole possession of the dining room and on the occasion the hotel management had decorated the room with American flags and supplied a band which throughout the evening played none but American airs. When the cigars and coffee had been reached the stirring strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" caught every man to his feet. There was much talk—not cut and dried toasts and speeches—but plain, heartfelt talk that meant something because it was heartfelt. Before each of these talks there was music. "Dixie," and drive that for a year before you add another; people know just what their salary is, they take a squirt at that; then, they notice your wife is wearing diamonds, that you are entertaining a lot and then tongues begin to wag and some of the goody-goodies demand that the searchlight be turned on. Never get prosperous in a hurry; go slow, your burst of speed makes the envious and your high living gets the wags even eye and the trouble commences."

The Colonel is like the family doctor, always called in when there is trouble. He has kept many a rising politician out of the divorce courts by his sterling common sense. He is called in on all occasions of importance, and towns above his fellow wire pullers like the Eiffel tower over Paris.

Trained For Matrimony.

Oriental gentlemen will not marry a woman who is so thin "that should she fall down her ribs would cut her." They want fat and lots of it too. A young fellow living in the county fell desperately in love with a Louisville girl who was as bright as a new dollar, of good family, full of wit, but alas, dreadfully thin. Were she wealthy she would be called willow, but as she was poor they called her acacia. Nevertheless the young man loved her and the wedding day was named. In the meanwhile he suggested that she retire to a lonely Indiana village or the river and accumulate flesh in solitude. She consented; a female companion was secured for her and the two girls retired to the village and devoted themselves to putting on flesh. Days spent in the open gave them the appetite of a comorant and their funny soon gave out, and starvation started them in the face. They wrote to the young man and told him to come before him and he responded nobly. The following day a wagon load of canned goods, cakes, fruit, vegetables, everything the human stomach could crave, was deposited at the village home and the fattening process went bravely on until the fiancée resembled a Strasburg goose ready for the slaughter. Never, in the annals of Cupid, at least in this neck of the woods, has such a training for matrimony been insisted upon, but the fat lady lasted a little while and now the bride is plumper and leaner than ever. But as one wicked man remarked it doesn't really matter for after one month of marriage a man can not tell a Venus from a Hottentot.

Director General, Fourth Avenue. That Director general in a Fourth Avenue window in the city is having havoc with the men. Some of the wives have provided linkers for their husbands and so get them past safely; others recommend putting a blanket over their heads as they go by, while others declare the gown is an eye-opener for the head of the law by several lengths under the wire. The gown is the apotheosis of ugliness, a sort of nightmare in gray and the lay figure in which it is shown is homely enough in build to convert the most hardened rouser to morality. One sight of it would debase the bald head and make the patrons of the same begin to consider what church they had better join.

The Mortgage on the Farm. Out near O'Bannon's station lives a gentleman whose brain is a sort of incubator for poetical ideas. This gentleman is Mr. John H. Turner, who is the presiding genius of the Western Farmer's Almanac, a publication which has held the boards for about eighty years or more and is treasured by the farmers alongside the family Bible and autograph album.

One special agricultural and domestic poem appears in the almanac yearly and the authors of the same owe not a little to the resourceful brain of Mr. Turner, who is most happy in suggestions. Many years ago the lovers of genuine poetry, the sort that presses the bottom and the human heart to the rest, were melted to tears by a poem by Will Carleton called "The Mortgage on the Farm." Now while a mortgage on the farm is by no means a rarity, this special one was so full of feeling, so tender, so pathetic, that it touched many a heart and glorified a very plain, unassuming subject.

It was Mr. Turner who suggested its composition to Carleton, after reading in some paper that many of the western farmers were encumbered with mortgages. It struck him as a good theme for a poem and the success of the composition justified his judgment. Editor Turner is personally acquainted with most of the poets and rhymers of the day, and is able to tell the sheep from the goats even in the dark.

Don't Get Prosperous in a Hurry. Col. J. Scott Newman, one of the best known men in the county and state at large, may be called the Dean of the Jefferson County School of Politics. With the change in each administration the Colonel carts all the dead horses out of the stable and prepares to grapple with business news. If some of the supposedly dead or feeble would only drop by the Dean they would be much better off than they are now.

The Colonel is not a man to be over-awed and visible signs of his popularity. On one occasion after meeting a local politician driving behind a fine pair of horses he frowned indignantly and declared, "I told Blank he was doing a foolish thing. Get one horse, Blank, said I."

Tom Watson's Jeffersonian and this paper, both our year, $1.75.

DAUGHTER.

Of Rev. Jacob Ditzler, Wds. J. C. Hoskins, of Harrods Creek—New School Law Very Unsatisfactory.

Harrods Creek, July 6.—Miss Nellie Gumbok, of Columbus, Ohio, is visiting Mrs. J. C. Hoskins at the home of Mrs. W. S. Kemp.

Miss Florence Ditzler, of Prospect, and Mr. J. Calvin Hoskins, of Louisville, were united in marriage June 25 in Louisville. Miss Ditzler is the daughter of the Rev. Jacob Ditzler, a noted Methodist divine, and Mr. Hoskins is the son of the late, E. H. Hoskins, of Harrods Creek. This is the groom's second venture on the matrimonial seas. The couple has gone East on a wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Huston, of Huston Hill, have gone to Goshen, Va., to visit their son for two weeks. Miss Margaret McConnel, of St. Louis, is visiting the family of F. E. Trumper.

The new school law which was hailed as such an improvement over the old method of electing trustees and employing teachers seems to fall far short of being satisfactory. Under this provision a negro could be elected to supervision over white schools, and he could have a voice in the selection of every white teacher in the county.

Dr. DeHaven, a notestoph of Louisville, has an office in the Prospect Bank building, where he will receive his patients on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Miss Page, the private secretary of Judge Peyton Hobson, of the Court of Appeals, who has been visiting the family of Dr. W. N. Hobson, has gone to Virginia to visit relatives for a few weeks and will not be able to spend the remainder of the summer here.

The Glorious Fourth was fittingly observed at this place by the elected fire-brackers during the day. The law of the day of other fire works in the evening.

July 4.—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Beckley spent Wednesday in Louisville. Miss Alma Gatewood was the guest of Miss Lida Sturgeon this week. Little Miss Louise Beckley spent Thursday with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Beckley.

Mr. James Beckley and son, James, spent last Saturday in Louisville. Mrs. Dick of Louisville spent Tuesday with Mr. A. W. Jones of Louisville.

Mr. Lesley Newberger will leave Monday for New York. Mrs. Dick of Louisville, returned to Mrs. James Pryor to spend the summer after spending two weeks at her mother.

Mr. N. Benninger, of Louisville, spent this week with Mr. J. Leroy. Mrs. G. W. Beckley entertained friends at her home. Mrs. J. A. Beckley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beckley, Miss Lucy Howell of Louisville, Miss Edith and children, of Alabama, Mr. James and Howell Beckley and Master Jim Beckley, of Louisville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith, of Georgia, Miss Mary Beckley, of Louisville, and Mrs. Minnie Seebold, of Louisville, who spent this week with Mrs. James Johnson.

BARDSTOWN ROAD.

July 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richer visited Mr. and Mrs. C. Roederer Sunday.

Miss Louise Lorenz, of Louisville, is visiting Miss Margaret Roederer and Miss Minnie Effinger.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Roederer visited Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Roederer Sunday.

Miss Minnie Effinger will leave for Cincinnati in a few weeks. Mr. Geo. Roederer is at his home. Mr. Louis Diebel and his mother are in town.

A number of young people attended the ice cream social at the First Baptist church Thursday night. They were Messrs. Zeller Williams, George, Ed and Albert Roederer, Miss Minnie Lorenz, Anna, Alvina and Minnie Beckley, Miss and Mrs. Amelia Roederer, Lena Deimer, Minnie Effinger, Margaret Roederer, Mr. Charlie Roederer presented them with his horse and market wagon. They had a jolly good time.

PRESTONIA.

July 6.—Miss Charlotte Meir, a daughter of Mr. Geo. Roederer, is visiting Mr. Meir in seriously ill with appendicitis.

Mr. Cahill, who has the contract to repair Preston Street road, certainly understands the way to do it. The road was repaired as it is being done now.

Mr. Sallie P. Durrett had a narrow escape last week from being imprisoned under the massive wall which came near falling upon her. Dr. and Mrs. S. Thompson's little daughter is very ill.

BUECHEL.

July 4.—The community of Buechel is busy hauling their crops to Stines Station. The crops are reported fair but the price is low.

The dance at A. Franz's hall was a success. Miss Maggie Roederer is a correspondent for the evening Star Club from now on.

Miss Emma Graf had her guest a few young men from Louisville, recently.

Wm. B. Martin, our liverman, bought of him Friday last week a thirty-seven-year-old horse for $100. Mr. Martin desires to purchase several horses and will soon have one of the best stables in the county.

IN THE COUNTY.

The following letter to The Jeffersonian is self-explanatory: Mr. Editor: The enclosed song was sung by one of Jefferson county's graduates at the commencement. Most of the children of the class and patrons were anxious for the words. I know of no better way to reach them than through your paper. Miss Elsie Nachand, of Lyndon, made quite a hit when it was sung. She was a bright little graduate from that school.

Respectfully,

L. Kurkamp, Secy.

IN THE COUNTY.

There's a time for every thing, you've oft heard people say; That's the reason we appear in every garland gay. Here we are to meet you and to get a hearty yell; For we earned our laurels in that trial set in May; She who taught you daily and who urged you bravely on; Calls you still to labor and she beckons "Follow on." Now, my classmates, let us rally round and try our fate, For they are the jewels in this 19-08.

In the county, Jefferson county, Where a Stonestreet paves the way, In the county, Jefferson county, In the county where we want to stay.

There's a charm about our county that you can't resist, Take your teachers and your schools—leave politics off the list, There's a something in the moon-beams dancing thru the trees, Helps us in our lessons and just makes us want to please, The one who strives to help us and who leads us proudly on; She it is we'll follow and we all shall wear a crown. If you'd like to know her make a friendly call or two, Down at our old country school and she beckons "Follow on." In the county, Jefferson county, etc. (after applause)

Now I see you all agree that what I say is true, Keep on thinking this and prove your loyal patrons, too, When we need your aid to carry tangled measures thru, March right up and cast your vote all "straight" for Stonestreet too. For you will ne'er regret the good that you can surely do; For our schools and all the many little children too; Leave it to our Lady Queens who rules with kindest sway And you'll find things moving in the proper way. In the county, Jefferson county, etc.

THE TATTLER.

By Elvira Sydney Miller.

New Southern Magazine.

A new magazine will make its appearance in the early fall with that popular gentleman, Dr. Joseph Fowler, as editor in chief. The magazine, as editor in chief, has decided to name it "The Sunny South," on Joel Chandler Harris' style. A launch on the copyrighted publication of his own name that title which makes it imperative for our Louisville magazine to secure another name. "The Southerner" has been suggested and some of the prospective readers might set their wits to work and make suggestions. Dr. Fowler will preside over the destinies of the monthly and send contributors those neat little epistles, "Tatted With Thanks," is one of the best known and most popular men in the city of Louisville; he has held many positions of honor and trust, is an eloquent speaker, a good writer and a charming man socially. The monthly will be handsomely illustrated, and number among its contributors the most brilliant, witty and gifted writers of the South. It will be published in Louisville and our handsome friend the Doctor is already in training for the arduous duties before him.

Wm. Wm. Koop's Cut Glass.
It is Col. William Koop now, since Governor Wilson has seen fit to strengthen the military ranks by the addition of our poppy-fellow citizen, Col. Koop is one of the most wide-awake business men in the city and is right in the front rank of the village improvement workers of Crescent Hill. He has built a lot of lovely homes there and has a handsome residence of his own, wherein his beautiful wife dispenses a graceful hospitality. Mrs. Koop, by the way, has a passion for fine cut glass and every time our Colonel goes away on a trip he comes home with a votive offering in the shape of a bowl, pitcher, hot box dish or something equally as handy. The number of his trips is evidenced by the profusion of cut glass in his wife's collection, and possibly upon his return from winning and dining with the Governor he did not come home empty handed, but bearing a souvenir of President in the shape of this ornamental ware. As visits to the state capital generally leave a fellow either in doubtless a howl.

Speaking of glass, but not of the cut variety, it is astounding to find how large the loss on this article of cut glass is during the summer season at the parks. Col. Tony Land, which once invested heavily in glass, was in the park during the summer season at the parks. Col. "The Mortgage on the Farm."
Out near O'Bannon's station lives a gentleman whose brain is a sort of incubator for poetical ideas. This gentleman is Mr. John H. Turner, who is the presiding genius of the Western Farmer's Almanac, a publication which has held the boards for about eighty years or more and is treasured by the farmers alongside the family Bible and autograph album.

One special agricultural and domestic poem appears in the almanac yearly and the authors of the same owe not a little to the resourceful brain of Mr. Turner, who is most happy in suggestions. Many years ago the lovers of genuine poetry, the sort that presses the bottom and the human heart to the rest, were melted to tears by a poem by Will Carleton called "The Mortgage on the Farm." Now while a mortgage on the farm is by no means a rarity, this special one was so full of feeling, so tender, so pathetic, that it touched many a heart and glorified a very plain, unassuming subject.

It was Mr. Turner who suggested its composition to Carleton, after reading in some paper that many of the western farmers were encumbered with mortgages. It struck him as a good theme for a poem and the success of the composition justified his judgment. Editor Turner is personally acquainted with most of the poets and rhymers of the day, and is able to tell the sheep from the goats even in the dark.

Don't Get Prosperous in a Hurry.
Col. J. Scott Newman, one of the best known men in the county and state at large, may be called the Dean of the Jefferson County School of Politics. With the change in each administration the Colonel carts all the dead horses out of the stable and prepares to grapple with business news. If some of the supposedly dead or feeble would only drop by the Dean they would be much better off than they are now.

The Colonel is not a man to be over-awed and visible signs of his popularity. On one occasion after meeting a local politician driving behind a fine pair of horses he frowned indignantly and declared, "I told Blank he was doing a foolish thing. Get one horse, Blank, said I."
